Event Overview

Guided by the Beijing Association for Science and Technology (B.A.S.T.) and organized by the Beijing Science and Technology International Exchange Center, the event aims to bring together global innovation resources to accelerate cross-border collaboration in medical technology, precision health, and digital healthcare.

This initiative continues B.A.S.T.'s mission to strengthen Beijing's international science and technology exchange network, promote the transformation of cutting-edge medical technologies, and cultivate a new generation of globally minded scientific and entrepreneurial talent.

About Organizer

The Beijing Association for Science and Technology (B.A.S.T.) serves as a hub for the city's scientific and technological community. Dedicated to advancing innovation and international cooperation, B.A.S.T. promotes initiatives that link global talent with Beijing's innovation ecosystem.

Through its flagship “Innovation Link” series, B.A.S.T. has successfully hosted major events such as:

- the China-UK Precision Medicine International Acceleration Camp (July 2025), and
- the HICOOL 2025 Global Entrepreneurs Summit — New Energy & Artificial Intelligence Special Session (October 2025).

These initiatives have become key platforms for building cross-border collaboration, enabling global talent to integrate with Beijing's innovation ecosystem, and accelerating the commercialization of transformative technologies.

Why Attend?

The December MedTech event will center on key themes, including:

- Precision Medicine & AI-Driven Diagnostics
- Innovative Medical Devices & Digital Health Platforms
- Data Intelligence and Healthcare Transformation
- Cross-Border Collaboration and Global Market Access

By combining conference sessions and competition segments, the event provides a comprehensive platform for knowledge exchange, project showcasing, and industry connections.

The event will feature interactive roundtables and networking sessions with prominent local enterprises and government leaders. Participating companies are invited to showcase their innovations and share their expertise through dedicated presentations.
